

Useful Resources

UCLA - Econ 221 - Fall 2018

François Geerolf

Introduction

Below is a list of resources you might find useful for doing empirical research, and economics research in general. Many of the resources below I first encountered thanks to this list, which also has a lot more.

1 Presenting

Adam Guren, “How To Give a Lunch Talk”

Jesse Shapiro, “How to give an applied micro talk” (applies equally well for applied macro talks).

2 Writing

John Cochrane, “Writing Tips”.

3 Graphing

Novartis, “Graphics Principles - Cheat Sheet V1.0”

4 Coding

Matthew Gentzkow and Jesse M. Shapiro, “Code and Data for the Social Sciences: A Practitioner’s Guide”

5 Other advice

Ariel Rubinstein, “10 Q&A: Experienced Advice for “Lost” Graduate Students in Economics”